RE: Coronavirus and Traveling to Honduras

With the spread of the coronavirus to multiple countries, CHHF is sensitive to the concerns of individuals, family members and team leaders relative to the health and safety of our missioners. We are staying abreast of this developing issue by listening closely to reliable sources and regularly reviewing travel recommendations from the CDC.

At present, there are no travel recommendations from the CDC relative to the coronavirus for Mexico, all of Central America and all of South America.

With this in mind, CHHF will continue to send teams to Honduras unless those recommendations change. Certainly, we would not want nor expect that this decision would override the concerns of individuals or even team leaders. We will continue to monitor the situation as closely as possible and update our website as needed.
